

FIRST EXECUTION IN MICHIGAN IN 108 YEARS

OF CENTRALIA
GIRL, SUICIDE

Found Dead In Auto at Dealer's Home,
Clues Found

Centralia, Ill., July 8.—(AP)—Chief of Police William Kaelin uncovered new clues today in the shooting of Mary Britton, 29, in the home of a prominent automobile dealer in a fashionable residential district, and said it appeared more and more likely that her death was suicide.

The partly clad body of the slim brunette was found last night, a bullet through her heart, in the bedroom at the home of Elvin Satterlee. The chief said Satterlee told him he rented the house several months ago and the woman had been with him since July 4, having come from a beauty school in East St. Louis, where he had been sending her.

Kaelin disclosed he had found a second bullet, apparently fired from the death weapon, and had discovered a box of pills "which appear to be a drug" in the woman's purse. The other bullet had been found in a pillow on the bed, near where the body lay.

Evidence Gathered.

Bits of bloodstained plaster from the stairway wall, blood stains from the bed clothing, the gun, the bullets, and the pills were taken to the St. Louis police department by the chief. He also took the note found beneath her body, and samples of the woman's handwriting for comparison.

"If the blood matches, the handwriting compares favorably, and the bullets were fired from the gun, I'll be convinced her death was suicide," Kaelin said.

In view of the new developments, an inquest planned for tonight was postponed until tomorrow pending the findings of laboratory experts.

The chief said he was not yet completely satisfied, because of the many "peculiar" circumstances surrounding the woman's death.

Among the "peculiar" things he listed were bloodstains on the walls of the stairway in the house, a battered and bloodstained coffee pot in a downstairs room, a broken lamp, broken china closet, a long tear in theavenport cover and other disorders downstairs.

Triangle Hinted.

Dr. E. N. Neber said there was a deep scratch or cut on the girl's right hand.

Under a pillow was a note which read, "I love you and you have fallen in love with someone else, according to Chief Kaelin. The note was signed, "Love, Mary."

Satterlee was quoted as saying he had not "gone" with any other girl and was unaware of any person the note might refer to.

Police quoted him as explaining he and a friend, Arthur Donie, had gone to St. Louis about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He said he found the girl's body when they returned about 6 P. M. The auto dealer also was quoted by Kaelin as saying Miss Britton once threatened to kill herself.

The stories of neighbors further complicated the tragedy.

Pearl Hansen, a school teacher who said she was visiting next door, reported she heard "sounds of agony" and a "cry for help" about 1:30 P. M. and 3:30 P. M. respectively.

Mrs. A. A. Eaton, the chief disclosed, told of seeing "a blonde woman" leave the porch of the Satterlee home "about five or six o'clock and get in a car with another woman and drive away."

Among persons Chief Kaelin said he intended to question today was Satterlee's estranged wife. He said she lives at Sandoval, Ill., about ten miles north of here.

be Given Enrollees

Maj. Gen. H. A. Drumm, U.S.A., commanding the Sixth Corps Area, has announced a new line of instruction for enrollees in CCC camps of the area, according to letters received at the Oregon CCC camp, which will doubtless be of interest to youths contemplating enrollment in the corps. Instruction will be given in the following:

Deadlock Broken

Belvidere, Ill., July 8.—(AP)—It required 183 ballots to elect Robert Hawkey chairman of the Boone county board.

His election yesterday broke a six to six vote which had existed since June 13, when the board met to reorganize.

The board served without pay from June 21 to save the county costs of the dispute which centered on the charge that southern townships had not been represented adequately on road and bridge finance committees during the years a northern bloc member was chairman.

PLANE CRASHED
WITH 8 ABOARD;
ONE WAS KILLED

Accident Occured During
Takeoff At Billings

Billings, Mont., July 8.—(AP)—A Northwest Airlines transport plane carrying eight passengers and a crew of two crashed at the end of the field while taking off here early today, killing one person and injuring seven.

Mrs. N. S. Mackay, Evanston, Ill., died at St. Vincent's hospital in Billings shortly after the crash, the hospital announced.

Her husband was taken to the hospital.

Mrs. W. J. Tisdale, Sloan, B. C., also was being treated at the hospital.

The other five passengers were released after treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

A. T. Peterson, Northwest terminal manager here, said the plane took off at 2:53 A. M. (3:53 A. M. C.S.T.) for Chicago and crashed about 1,000 feet from the end of the runway on the edge of a canon.

He said the pilot, Walter Bullock of Minneapolis, could give no reason for the crash.

Pilot Prevented Fire

The plane was demolished, Peterson said, when it smashed on a small knoll. He said the tail and one wing struck first. The pilot cut the switch preventing fire.

The plane was one of the new zephyr 14-H type, Peterson said, the same model that plunged to earth near Bozeman, Mont., several months ago, killing eight passengers.

G. Tessum, of Billings, a passenger, told the Associated Press, "the pilot didn't seem to be able to control the plane. It wobbled pretty badly."

"A fellow passenger shouted to me, 'we're goners now,' as the plane began to vibrate at only 100 feet altitude."

"We were awfully lucky not to be killed."

PASSENGER LIST

St. Paul, July 8.—(AP)—Leslie Farrington, general traffic manager for Northwest Airlines, said these persons were aboard the plane when it crashed today at Billings, Mont.:

Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Mackay, Evanston, Ill.

Al Niemeyer, of the Department of Commerce, Chicago.

C. V. Gary, Chicago.

W. C. Bellinger, ensign on the U. S. S. North Hampton, Bremerton, Wash.

Mrs. W. J. Tindale, South St. Louis, British Columbia.

F. S. Brislawn, Wallace, Idaho.

G. Tessum, Billings.

Pilot Walter Bullock, Minneapolis.

Co-Pilot Lester Doan, Minneapolis.

TO AVOID "EXPLOITATION"

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 8.—(AP)—United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) proposed today that government officials be required to make public the amount of income they derive from market transactions, personal holdings or private services. The senator, in a statement from his home said need existed for regulation to protect the public from "outright exploitation."

Dixon Salesman Found Unconscious
in Badly Wrecked Auto This Morn

John Reynolds, Dixon salesman, was seriously injured at an early hour this morning when his car crashed into the concrete head wall of a culvert on U. S. route 52 near the south city limits. Louis Schumm and Adamo Fazzi, who were driving south on the highway at 4:30 this morning when a heavy fog prevailed, discovered the badly wrecked car and stopped to investigate.

Reynolds was found unconscious, slumped behind the steering wheel which had been shattered by the impact against his chest. The two men summoned police and Reynolds was removed to the Katherine Shaw Bethel hospital and the wrecked car was hauled to a local garage.

Reports shortly before noon today indicated that he had sustained chest and internal injuries, the extent of which would be determined at an X-ray examination. He was, however, reported to be resting comfortably. The young man is employed as a salesman for the L. C. Mercantile Company of this city.

PALESTINE
WRACKED BY NEW STRIFE

British Troops In Haifa,
Battling Tribesmen

Jerusalem, July 8.—(AP)—A bomb blast at Jerusalem's busy Jaffa gate today killed four Arabs and wounded 36 in a new outbreak of deadly terror which Great Britain is trying to crush with warships and troops reinforcements.

The bomb tore apart a bus in the crowded Arab bus station and a vegetable market in the shadow of David's Tower.

The vehicle was filled with Arab countryfolk about to leave for Hebron. Its bloodstained and twisted framework was scattered in a roadway filled with panic-stricken humanity.

Troops of the Scottish Black Watch regiment cleared the square and started hunting the bomb thrower.

One Jew surrounded by an enraged Arab mob was rescued by police and hustled to safety.

About the same time a general strike broke out in Amman, in neighboring Transjordan. Workers struck in sympathy with Palestine Arabs, victims of bomb throwings at Haifa, Palestine's chief port.

Today's violence raised the casualties in nine days of riots and tension to 37 killed and 150 injured. The British battle cruiser Repulse, one of the world's biggest battleships, steamed into Haifa harbor to take the place of the 7,500-ton British cruiser Emerald. The Repulse trained her cannon on Haifa.

Troops From Egypt

Two battalions—about 1,600 men—of British troops rushed from Egypt to reinforce the 10,000 British soldiers, armed police, and aviators who had failed to halt the bloody reign of terror which Jewish leaders feared might develop into civil war between Jews and Arabs.

Officers planned to put the area under naval control. Marines with bayoneted and loaded rifles were ready for emergency landings to occupy Kingsway and Central street, waterfront danger zones and battle grounds in Haifa, chief port of British-mandated Palestine.

Eleven squadrons of the British air force kept their machines tuned for quick flights and quick bombings of any town or village where any fresh disorder might burst out to add to the already great tension.

Every Village Patrolled

Military authorities stationed soldiers in every village throughout a wide area in northern Palestine to prevent sporadic outbreaks from developing into large-scale guerrilla warfare.

Abd El Razzak, notorious brigand chieftain, wrote a grim paragraph on a tragic page of Holy Land history by sending a "proclamation" to the town of Tulkarem, occupied by British troops, demanding inhabitants pay him $7,500 tribute as "commander-in-chief of the rebellion."

Fan: Wishes to Swap

Members of the Lee county Board of Review are sweltering in more ways than one during the hot days of July. Complainers appearing before the body are not particularly cooling to the prevailing temperature, but the chief complaint appears to center about a "rattlin'" electric fan. Heavily reinforced with varicolored rope, twine and ribbon, the fan fails to perform the necessary function, and attempts at an even exchange with some of the other county offices have proven fruitless. Members of the Board of Review today offered to consider a "swap" and suggested that interested persons call 50 for additional particulars.

Low Bidders

Springfield, Ill., July 8.—(AP)—The Shappert Engineering Company of Belvidere submitted the low bid of $316,498 today for construction of a new bridge over the Rock river at Dixon, the division of highways announced.

For paved approaches to the bridge, the Joyce Brothers Contracting Company, Springfield, was low with bid of $155,371 if the entire thickness is to be concrete, and $160,229, if a crushed stone filler is to be used over the existing pavement.

INDIANAPOLIS
ELECTRIC CHAIR

Michigan City, Ind., July 8.—(AP)—Vurtis Neal, 19, and Hugh Marshall, Jr., 22, Indianapolis youths convicted of the $125 murder of William H. Bright, Indianapolis druggist, were executed in the state prison electric chair today.

Marshall died first because he had been first to register when the pair was taken to prison.

Prison officials said neither young man made any statement before death.

Marshall and Neal spent their last hours writing letters to friends and relatives after they had given up hope of escaping the death penalty by a last-minute reprieve from the state supreme court or Governor Townsend. Their executions had been halted three times previously. They were originally scheduled to die July 24, 1937.

Trial evidence showed Marshall and Neal waited near a traffic light and as Bright stopped, climbed into his automobile, forced him to drive into Shelby county, shot him to death, took $125 from his clothes, then dumped his body into a river.

Magazine Solicitor
Facing Prosecution

J. W. Bryer of St. Cloud, Minn., is being returned to Dixon this afternoon from Chicago by Sheriff Ward Miller, to answer to a charge of larceny. According to State's Attorney Edward Jones, Bryer, a solicitor for the St. Cloud Advocate, a publication in the interest of the St. Cloud Orphanage, a Catholic institution, obtained a number of subscriptions to the magazine in Dixon recently, and neglected to deliver the funds collected to the orphanage.

Bryer, according to the state's attorney, operated in Sterling and several other Illinois cities, and a few days ago was arrested in Chicago, but was not prosecuted, with the result that he was turned over to Sheriff Miller today to be returned to Dixon.

Low Depression
Point Reached 6
Years Ago Today

Chicago, July 8.—(AP)—Today was the sixth anniversary of the low point of the great depression.

July 8, 1932, according to many economic charts, was the nadir of the deep downswing in prices which started in the fall of 1929 after the stock market crash.

But the bottom of the depression passed unnoticed in the news of the day.

Principal concern of most editors of six years ago today were European dispatches. At Lausanne, Switzerland, another chapter in post World War history was closed with the agreement fixing $750,000,000 as Germany's final reparations payment. And from Moscow, came news Jimmy Mattern and Bennett Griffin, trying for a round-the-world speed record, had crashed between Moscow and Berlin.

More Attendants Need at State Hospital in Opinion Attorney Jones

States Attorney Commented After Inquest There

State's Attorney Edward Jones, who yesterday afternoon attended the inquest into the death of Arthur Talmage, 23-year-old patient at the Dixon state hospital, stated that insufficient attendance is given to large groups of patients and at the close of the inquisition said:

"The staff and employees are not to be criticized in this instance, but I can see an excellent opening for the absorbing of some unemployment at least in providing proper attendance upon large groups of these patients."

Testimony submitted at the inquest indicated that the two Negro patients last Sunday attacked and beat Talmage in an out door toilet on the playground, inflicting external injuries which caused his death at 12:30 noon yesterday.

Staff physicians who conducted a post-mortem examination of the body on the order of Dr. A. F. Moore, deputy coroner, testified that in their opinion and from the findings, death resulted from cerebral concussion resulting from external injuries." Dr. Harry I. Weiner and Dr. Meyer Backer of the state hospital staff conducted the autopsy yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Weiner told the coroner's jury that a blood clot and brain congestion involving numerous minor hemorrhages were found in the examination of the brain. The blood clot was found beneath the right temple and according to the two physicians apparently resulted from the patient's having been beaten and from external violence.

Three attendants, Richard Ruva, who recently became employed at the institution and was on duty on Sunday afternoon with a trusted patient in supervising a group of about 120 patients from ward A-8, and who accompanied them to the playground, testified that he knew nothing of an attack. Henry Hamlock, 66, who was in charge of the group from 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon until they returned to their ward, testified that when he took charge of the group at the playground, he observed Talmage on the ground, apparently asleep. Both of his eyes were blackened and there was evidence of injuries about the face, Hamlock stated. Hamlock returned the patients to the dining hall about 4 o'clock, he added, but knew nothing of an attack until he saw Talmage at the ward building, when he ordered cold towels applied to the head.

Nowell T. Baker, 44, a third attendant, testified that he checked the group of patients into cottage A-8 about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon and in describing his observation of Talmage's injuries, stated that his head and neck were scratched, both eyes were blackened and that his nose was swollen. Upon a more thorough investigation, he found deep scratches about the body of the patient, and then started an investigation which resulted in the Negro patients in the same ward being named as the attackers. Talmage was placed in bed and last Tuesday was removed to the hospital ward, Baker testified.

Mrs. Theresa McMahon, R. N., described the injuries found on the patient's body when he was admitted to the hospital and placed the time of his death at 12:31 Thursday afternoon. Dr. R. J. Graff gave a history of the x-ray and fluorescent examinations which he Fourteen-year-old Fred Treiger, who Wednesday left his home at Lombard bound for California, returned home late last night with his father, Herbert Treiger, who came to Dixon for his runaway son. Fred left home Wednesday and hitch-hiked rides as far as Dixon where he encountered Patrolman Clarence Seagren, who took him in custody.

PARAFFIN ON FIRE

A container of melted paraffin which was being used in sealing jellies, caught fire yesterday afternoon at 3:15 at the home of M. J. Wedlock, 616 North Hennepin avenue, and caused some damage before the flame was extinguished. The flames spread to window curtains which were quickly consumed and paint on the window frames was scorched. The fire department was summoned but the flames had been extinguished upon their arrival. The damage was covered by insurance.

Charters of Ashton, the retiring president, presided.

Five Men Killed When Locomotive
Blows Up Like Giant Firecracker

Missoula, Mont., July 8.—(AP)—The locomotive of a Northern Pacific freight train "blew up like a giant firecracker" near Willis, Mont., late last night, killing three crewmen and two transients.

Carl H. Syria, U. S. forest ranger, said H. P. Van Pelt, rear brakeman, told him five were known dead and "there might be more."

Van Pelt said the dead were: Ernest M. Westin, engineer, Missoula; E. T. Dunlap, fireman, Missoula; Ernest Bedilion head brakeman, Missoula; two unidentified transients.

Van Pelt said the explosion came without warning near Willis 29 miles east of Missoula.

The locomotive "split in half and blew up like a giant firecracker", Van Pelt said. Half was in the turbulent Clarks Fork river, about 100 yards wide, and the other half alongside the tracks.

Nine cars were derailed.

Van Pelt said "there was a full load" of 50 transients in the fifth car back but only three were slightly injured.

Temperamental

Olney, Ill.—(AP)—Residents of this oil city were watching the clock today.

The big temperamental time-piece mounted high over the courthouse has been going on one spasm after another lately. Yesterday it set a new record—the bell sounding 528 consecutive times.

The town first was startled by the unorthodox behavior of the clock April 21 when it dinged 496 times. On May 2 it tolled 42 times.

SEADLUND MUST BE EXECUTED IN
CHAIR, JULY 14th

No Further Efforts To Delay Sentence Will Be Made

Chicago, July 8.—(AP)—Federal Judge John P. Barnes set July 14 today as the day on which John Henry Seadlund must die in the electric chair for kidnapping Charles S. Ross, retired greeting card manufacturer, September 25.

Seadlund, 27, was led into the crowded courtroom handcuffed to two deputy United States marshals to hear the date set a second time. The original date, April 19, was nullified when the case was appealed.

Directly behind the young mechanic on the trip from the marshal's office to the courtroom two floors below was a heavy guard and the marshal, William H. McDonnell. Seadlund said nothing; he grinned wanly throughout the proceedings.

Attorney Not Present

The court-appointed attorneys who defended him at his trial, Floyd E. Thompson and Frederic Burnham, were not present but sent as representatives C. L. Enrich and Miles G. Seelye, respectively. Enrich and Seelye took no action during the appearance, and said afterward no further efforts to delay execution of the sentence would be made since the defendant wished none.

After the brief hearing, Seadlund was marched back to the marshal's office to await return to the Cook county jail where he will await electrocution in the jail's chair.

Marshal McDonnell announced previously that, on instructions from Washington, only three newspapermen, representing the Associated Press and two news agencies, would be permitted among the execution witnesses.

Sheriff John Toman of Cook county today said that unless Chicago's newspapers were permitted to have representatives present he would refuse the government use of the county's electric chair.

Later Marshal McDonnell said he discussed the execution plans with Sheriff Toman after the latter telephoned Washington. The marshal then announced the execution would be carried out "as scheduled at the Cook county jail under the government regulations" a few minutes after midnight of July 13.

AT 71 OTHER HANGAR

Epworth, Ill., July 8.—(AP)—Hanna, who arranged details of hanging today of Anthony Chebatoris at Milan, Mich., has at 71 other hangings but never has hanged a man.

What he means is that he has sprung the trap. But he looks to all the details preceding a hanging and his motives are humanitarian.

When he was 20 years old, he said, he witnessed a hanging in which the victim died in agony. He said he decided that if men were to be hanged, he would perfect the execution so the victims would go suddenly and painlessly to their deaths.

He built a trap and scaffold, seasoned a rope and perfected a noose. When sandbag tests had proved his work to his satisfaction, he "hired out" and has been in demand for many years.

A member of a pioneer White county family, Hanna lives with his wife of the "Shadyrest" estate. He and his brother, H. S. Hanna, operate more than 1,000 acres of land in White county.

Just before the black hood is adjusted over the condemned man's head, Hanna usually shakes his hand and asks forgiveness for his part in the hanging. Then he stands at the left of the man and holds the heavy hangman's knot against the man's left ear until the falling body jerks it from his hand.

Hanna arranged the details of Charlie Birger's hanging at Benton, Ill., in 1928, the last official hanging in Illinois.

School Board Sued by
Pella, Ia. Company

The Rolfscreen Company of Pella, Iowa, is the plaintiff in an action which was filed in the circuit court yesterday afternoon against the Board of Education of Dixon school district, No. 170, and others, in which it seeks to collect a claim in the amount of $2,160.28 and court costs. The action was filed by the law firm of Dixon, Devine, Bracken & Dixon of Dixon and relates to equipment which was installed in the new Lincoln elementary school in this city last year.

The plaintiff firm, according to the action, furnished Venetian blinds which were installed in the building by the firm of Yeager, Jacquim Co., Inc., and deduction was made from the original cost of $2,440 for certain differences required under the original architect's specifications.

DETROIT GANG-
STER HANGED
BY UNCLE SAM

Governor's Appeal To Roosevelt Failed to Prevent It

Milan, Mich., July 8.—(AP)—Anthony Chebatoris was hanged by the federal government at 4:08 (C. S. T.) today and became the first victim of capital punishment to die in Michigan in 108 years.

Governor Frank Murphy, who had appealed to President Roosevelt to stop the federal government from breaking a century-old Michigan tradition, said the execution was a "blot" on the state's "civilized record."

The hanging took place at the federal detention farm here at sunrise.

Chebatoris, a Detroit gangster, was sentenced under the National Bank robbery act for an abortive holdup last Sept. 29 in Midland, Mich., in which Henry S. Porter, an innocent bystander, was slain. Michigan laws do not permit capital punishment except for high treason.

In Execution Hangar

The execution party of 23 entered the specially-built hanging chamber at 5:04 A. M. Chebatoris, with head erect, walked firmly up the 13 steps to the platform. He smiled at the chief executioner, G. Phil Hanna of Epworth, Ill., and appeared entirely calm. The trap was sprung at 5:10.

Presidential pardon of the sentence was at no time considered likely as Chebatoris was a criminal record since he was 17 years old in 1920, when he was sentenced for robbery in connection with a Packard and Motor Car holdup. Federal Bureau of Investigation men said he was a "king of crimes in Louisville, Ky., in Pittsburgh, where he was early lived."

Indians Were Friendly to First Settlers in Territory Which Later Became Flagg Township And the City Known Today as Rochelle, Illinois

Rathbun Bridge Was First to Be Built Over Kyte River

CHAPTER III

In a third chapter of the history recording the life of the early settlers who paved the way for the Rochelle of today, the picture of pioneer days is continued.

Wolves were quite numerous in the early days, and there was a large number of raccoons and wild cats. Not many of the settlers attempted to raise sheep, and if they had, the wolves would undoubtedly have proved quite troublesome. Father Reynolds and Harmon Minkler first introduced sheep raising into the community, and their flocks were frequently visited by these sulking marauders of the prairie.

Indians were, of course, seen often by the first settlers. Until about 1850, a band of Pottawatomies traveled through regularly every year and camped at Jefferson Grove. Their reservation was somewhere beyond the Mississippi, and they made an annual journey to Milwaukee to see the government agent stationed there.

Camped at Jefferson Grove. Their lodges, or wigwags, were composed of some kind of tent material made by themselves, which was supported by poles in the ground. These poles were not carried with them, but when they camped at a grove, as they always did, they would cut down some straight young saplings for the purpose. These were left standing, as they proceeded on their way, and these lodge poles at Jefferson Grove would be seen as late as 1857.

These traveling bands numbered all the way from 12 to 75 Indians, but there were usually about 40, and they used to stay at Jefferson for weeks at a time. The white settlers frequently visited their camps and were generally received very kindly. Some of the Indians were able to use a few words of English and a smattering of "jargon" picked up by some of the pale faces enabled them to communicate quite freely. They were in the habit of purchasing flour of the whites, and for the rest of their subsistence they depended on their skill in the chase.

plicity than cleanliness. They were usually suspended over the fire in the wigwags in their primal condition, neither skinned nor cleaned in the least, and when the hair was burned off and it was pretty well burned through, it was considered in a proper condition for serving.

In warm weather, those passing their encampment would frequently see Indians of all ages and conditions, loitering around outside their wigwags in all degrees of nudity. In winter, when some of their young men were out hunting when it came night, they would very often drop down in the swamp grass or in some grove, and with nothing but a single blanket or shawl to protect them from the biting cold, proceed to sleep, when it would be supposed that no human being could thus expose himself without being frozen to death. Indian women were usually very busy in the manufacture of bead work and wampum, which they sold to the whites. They possessed wonderful skill, and this work was really beautiful and artistic. There was one peculiarity about them: they would always put away their work the moment a white woman entered their wigwag, though they would allow a man to observe them as closely as he wished for hours.

Indians Were Peaceable. The Indians were always very peaceable and law abiding and measurably free from their very common vice, stealing.

The famous old Indian chief Shabbona was frequently seen in the community, his residence at Shabbona Grove not being very distant. Flagg, "Const" Reynolds and other settlers were personally acquainted with him and they represented him as possessed of two characters very unlike. Seen among civilized gentlemen at dinner, and one possessed more dignity or decorum, or could converse more intelligently, but take him among his own Indians in camp or on a hunt and no one in the whole band was more a "wild Injun" than he. With his family, Shabbona was encamped at Plum Thicket several weeks at one time, and his two sons, reaching "Const" Reynolds' house one evening remained with him over night.

Though the notorious Driscoll family (see Oregon's history published this spring in the Telegraph) lived in this county, a few miles north, the section around Rochelle was not very much troubled by horse thieves. The settlers were in constant dread, and exercised great precautions, but very few horses were actually stolen.

First Bridge Over Kyte. The Rathbun bridge was one of the first to be built over the Kyte river. The contract had been given to some stranger who made a business of bridge-building and, when it came to the raising, dwellers about Hickory Grove were invited to assist. An attempt to build a bridge across the Kyte at Hickory Grove was also made while yet it was a mere country settlement. The main south road was at first further west than now, that at that time it ran in a track and not a regularly laidout road. Settlers forded the Kyte several rods further down—the place where the river banks were worn down in a gradual slope to the water's edge and after crossing there they would around to the east to reach Bartholomew's cabin, where travelers very often halted to replenish their stores.

Second Bridge. When Flagg removed to the other side of the river and built his cabin, he laid out the present road and it was determined to build a bridge. It is not known who is entitled to the honor of originating the design for that bridge, but for simplicity and ingenuity, it could not easily be excelled. They first got out a great number of logs and prepared them in the same manner as for building a log cabin. With these they proceeded to construct an abutment on each side of the river and then piers in the middle, piling the logs one on top of another precisely as in building a house, only the sides of the abutments toward the land were left open. The filling in with earth was never done and they did not complete the bridge, but as the stringers were placed in position with a flat surface on the top, two or three feet wide, pedestrians, who understood the art of balancing, derived considerable benefit from it. In time this log structure was torn down, and in another bridge that was built "Dave" Stiles had the chief management. This one would have been a success but for one fact—it was hardly raised above the water's edge and next spring when the freshest came, the whole thing was swept away. By this time a bridge had become a necessity, and the next effort resulted in a structure that was placed into position and lasted for many years. In a fourth installment of this series the story of the advent of the railroad, and the subsequent pick-up progress in the community will be told.

THE ROAD WILL TURN

The road will turn, we must believe And truth will be the victor. So long unrighteousness has reigned Among church folks, And rector.

No that have they to learn the truth They join in with the rabble And speak lies, unashamed They join with Satan's babble.

They preach of love, a foreign word To those whose lives are shallow. They seek their own, and trample on The lives that God would hallow.

The road will turn, and God will smile The lying tongues, with terror. What know they of the love of God? Their spirits are in error.

The road must turn, truth must win Against the serpent's cunning. God must raise men of valor Who will set all liars running.

The road will turn and those who weep Will know of joys tomorrow. The tyrants cannot always reign And give us only sorrow.

The road will turn, this is our hope. The end of grief is near. Truth will rise triumphant And bring with it good cheer. Lillian A. Rapp.

People's Column

Just a few words to let the citizens and tax payers in the city of Dixon, to know the Honorable Mayor Wm. V. Slothower and his deputy commissioner Joseph E. Vaile between the two of them they're having a little grudge against me, for about three years instead of taking their spite of me personally they're taking it on a public street which is the public they're not to blame for what I do, when the Mayor and Commissioner took office about three years ago they took an oath with it, are they living up to the oath they took? for they are not. If any citizens in the City of Dixon wish to drive up and see Ninth street between the corner of Monroe and Madison they will see for themselves I am not to blame for anything I mentioned above which is a lot of other things for the past three years happened in the City of Dixon the citizens will be glad to know what it is which that will be published later. I remain

BABSON CLAIMS RECESSION OF THIS YEAR OVER

Charts Indications For Better On Business Barometer

Omaha, Nebraska, July 8.—Business has finally hit bottom and is bouncing back. Conditions have improved sharply in the last several weeks. Sentiment has changed almost overnight. Sensitive business barometers have risen vigorously. They forecast that the turn has been made. Business should now continue to pick-up very rapidly, at least until election day. Everyone should be cheerful and happy over the events of the last few days. Had the recession of 1938 continued at the rate it was traveling in recent months, the only result could have been economic chaos in the United States.

Business today is nearly five per cent higher than a month ago. It reached 28 per cent below normal on the Babson chart at the bottom of the dip compared with minus 40 per cent at the extreme pit of the old depression. Today, it has recovered to 25 per cent under normal and is rising weekly. While we have had several false starts in this recession, I am convinced that this one is the real turning point. The other temporary pickups were not preceded or accompanied by the traditional signs of an important change in the business trend. This current turn has come with most familiar barometers forecasting better times ahead. Here are some of the most important of these indicators:

Confirm Turn

1. Bond prices have been slowly edging forward in recent weeks. Such a rise ordinarily indicates that investment cash is piling up and the temptation to accept hand-some yields on good bonds cannot be overcome any longer. Hence, bond investing increases, prices rise slowly, yields fall, and buying power spills over into stock market bargains. Moreover, volume of new security financing has been moving higher for several months.

2. Stock prices are up about 30 per cent since their extreme lows several months ago on March 31. The market traditionally turns upward or downward two to three months before the business trend changes. Moreover, history shows that when stock trading dries up to 10 percent or less of the peak volume of the previous bull market, the turn in business is about to be, or has just been, made. The volume signal was given on June 8 when, with one exception, trading hit the lowest level in 20 years.

3. Wholesale prices as a whole are not sensitive indicators. Certain raw materials, such as hides, steel scrap, wool, silk, lead, zinc, and export copper however, are extremely quick to mirror the change in the business trend. Recently, quotations on nearly all of these commodities have jumped spectacularly. All the other false upturns since the Recession set in over a year ago have taken place while sensitive commodity prices were slipping to lower levels.

4. Interest rates were perhaps the most famous of all revival indicators in the old days. But now rates on bankers' acceptances, commercial paper, and the like, are frozen at ridiculously low levels. Rates charged to customers, however, still have a semblance of a free market and are, therefore, an indicator of business conditions. These rates for different sections of the country all touched their lows in February and March and since then have stiffened.

5. Bank deposits are a splendid forecaster of business. They usually turn six months or more before the business trend shifts. They began to dip well before business slanted downward last year and they have been steadily increasing since last December. Meanwhile, commercial loans have been falling for months. This indicates that inventories have been steadily reduced.

6. Steel operations are a sensitive barometer of industry. They rise and fall with business activity more closely than 90 per cent of the other industrial indexes. Since early June, operations have improved modestly. Meanwhile, steel scrap prices, almost an infallible forecaster of steel operations, have jumped more than 20 per cent.

7. Cotton cloth sales are the favorite "caller of the turn" for many observers. Cotton cloth is representative of the inventory situation. When cloth purchasing starts vigorously, it means that inventories must be replenished. Therefore, it is highly significant that in the last few weeks sales of print cloth have far outstripped production. Moreover, inventory buying has already spread into other textile lines and into the hide, leather, and shoe markets.

Why Fall Business Will Be Good

There are many other indicators which I could cite to back up my optimism. However, I have listed the major signs of the turn. Just as important, of course, are the factors which will keep the business machinery going now that it has started again. Among them are:

1. Largest credit reserves and easiest credit rules in history.

2. Biggest crops in many years to be sold at fairly good prices.

3. Best possibilities for a home building boom in history due to FHA mortgages.

4. Billions of dollars being spent for armaments, public works and relief.

5. Prices of most products and wages of most workers have been reduced to a saner basis.

6. Vast potential demand for goods of all kinds—from shoes and shirts to locomotives and generating plants.

The vital trends can give business a great forward push this fall. The sharpness of the recession drop may, I believe, be equalled by an almost vertical upswing. There is no financial debris to clean up after this recession as there was after the 1929-32 debacle. People have lost money, but few have been ruined. Business organizations are intact and all set to go. Washington wants good business. Hence, I am confident that the recession turn has come and that business should be better in the months ahead.

Mrs. Rosbrook and Mrs. Batchelder Give Bridge-Dinner

Mrs. Charles J. Rosbrook and Mrs. John M. Batchelder were planning everything for the pleasure of their guests last evening, entertaining at dinner at the Natchua Hotel, with bridge following at Mrs. Rosbrook's home, 501 Peoria avenue. Fifty-two friends were included on the guest list.

As a novel departure from the usual party plan, dinner was served "backward," with the dessert course appearing first. Vari-colored garden flowers in artistic arrangement were placed at intervals along the horseshoe shaped table.

Mixed garden flowers, with gladioli predominating, and candle-glow making an attractive setting for the bridge tables at Mrs. Rosbrook's home. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McMaster held high scores for the evening. Second prizes were won by Mrs. S. C. Stanfield and Ralph M. Ferguson.

HARTWIG FAMILY HAS REUNION

Celebration of three birthday anniversaries and a treasure hunt featured the annual Hartwig reunion Monday at the Frank W. Scholl home in Palmyra. The Misses Eleanor and Elaine Hummel, twin daughters of the W. B. Hummels of Polo, and Mrs. Ralph Hartwig of Polo shared the birthday compliment.

A picnic dinner was served at noon, and in the afternoon, the guests enjoyed birthday cake and ice cream. Miss Evelyn Scholl, who is at home on vacation from her school duties at Evanston, planned the treasure hunt.

Those attending from Polo were Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Scholl, Mr. and Mrs. George Webster, Seibert Hartwig, Mr. and Mrs. John Scholl and family, Mr. and Mrs. Morton Kroh and son Ralph, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scholl and family, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Webster, Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Dempsey, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Flower and daughter Irene, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Scholl, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hummel and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Deets, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dennis and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hartwig and Ted Lord, Mr. and Mrs. P. Leslie Williams and sons of Mt. Carroll and Miss Arlene Main of Sterling were also present.

Miss Emmert and Mr. Wadsworth Wed; Leave for Missouri Ozarks

Miss Alice Elizabeth Emmert, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Emmert of 614 College avenue, and Robert Myron Wadsworth, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wadsworth of Franklin Grove, were married at 8 A. M. today at St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church. The Rev. Lloyd Warren Walter read the single ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate families.

White garden flowers and ferns decorated the altar. Mrs. Dwight Chapman was at the organ for "The Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's "Lohengrin," and also accompanied Mrs. Cecil Jones of Grand Detour, the bride's cousin, who sang two numbers, "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning."

The bride's little sister and cousin, the Misses Charlotte Emmert, and Gloria Jean Jones of Grand Detour, were flower girls. Charlotte wore yellow organdy, Gloria Jean chose pink organdy, and both carried a bouquet of snapdragons.

Herbert Wadsworth, the bridegroom's brother, and Mrs. Wadsworth, who is the bride's cousin, attended the couple.

The bride wore a white sharkskin suit with a poude blue chiffon blouse, a sailor hat of white grosgrain, and white accessories. Mrs. Wadsworth was attired in aqua with white accessories.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, and afterward, the couple left for the Missouri Ozarks on a week's wedding trip. After July 17, they will be at home at 606 West First street.

Mrs. Wadsworth, a graduate of Dixon high school with the class of 1937, was employed at the Woolworth store until recently. The bridegroom, also a Dixon high school graduate, is employed in the valuation department of the Illinois Northern Utilities company.

ARBITRATION—THE POOR MAN'S FRIEND

Once there was a small-time produce merchant who bought $50 worth of fruit of specified grade from a wholesaler. When the fruit arrived, the merchant refused to accept or pay for it because it did not come up to specifications.

So the wholesaler hired a lawyer and sued for payment. It was six months before the case came up on a crowded court docket. By the time the trial ended, both litigants had lost money after paying lawyer fees, witness fees, and court costs. And the fruit had long since spoiled.

How many times has that story, with variations, been told in the history of American jurisprudence? The fact of the matter is that "going to court" is a luxury which few can afford in the United States. More and more the saying is heard: "The law is made by the lawyers."

But there is a remedy—arbitration. Arbitration is sponsored chiefly by the American Arbitration Association formed by far-sighted business leaders who were willing to give their time and experience to the task of cutting through the oceans of red tape which had made "justice" a jest to the man without means.

Here, it would appear, is the answer to a man's prayer for immediate legal relief. Before impartial arbiters not lawyers but experts in the matters involved in the case—a man may explain his grievance and expect a fair and unbiased decision.

For a fee of only 5 per cent of the amount involved, litigants may come before one or several arbiters and adjust claims ranging anywhere from a few dollars to millions. The association is entirely non-profit-making, and its nominal fee for expenses compares with conservative estimates that the average court suit costs the litigant as high as 40 per cent of the amount involved.

There is no formal trial. Each litigant states his side of the case, bringing witnesses if desired. The arbiters listen, unimpeded by legal technicalities, and arrive at decisions on a common sense basis. There is no delay, no drawn-out court proceedings, very little squawking at the rulings.

Forty-six of the 48 states have now given legal status to arbitration. Many industries, particularly those in which there are many disputes involving small amounts, are writing arbitration clauses into all contracts.

Approximately 700 business and professional men have volunteered their service to act as arbiters without pay. Their decisions are binding.

Leaders of the movement are heartened by the public response. Arbitration looks like a great thing, except, perhaps, for the lawyers.

SUMMER SOLUTIONS

When you stop to think that if all the peace proposals that have been made in the last couple of years were dealt around among the inhabitants of the earth there'd probably be at least one for every man, woman and child, you can't help but wonder if maybe it isn't man that makes war at all, but some unearthly demon.

Among recent arrivals is the suggestion of a professor of philosophy that a woman be made secretary of war. Women, he says, are by nature more peaceful than men, and less likely to start throwing remarks and punches until it appears there's no other choice. Here, here, boys! Order!

There also comes to hand news of a couple of young Englishmen who want to run a foot race around the deck of an ocean liner bound from England to America, thus running all the way between the two countries, and demonstrating, they say, everybody's neighborliness under the skin. They write to an American magazine asking for the boat fare.

The most practical of the recent proposals comes from a woman who suggests that the best method of building up a thoroughly effective anti-war sentiment is for the women of the world to start pounding the peace idea into the heads of the next generation while it's still in the cradle, and keep at it till it takes effect.

That at least, gets a little closer to the root of the matter.

DOIN'S AT THE DEPOT

Although the "Big City" likes to picture its people as plus-ultra sophisticates, the fact is that they differ little from inhabitants of the smallest town in the country. Scratch a city slicker and you turn up a yokel.

For years the movies have overplayed the gag of the small-towners rushing down to the railroad station every day to watch the "Limited" whizz through. The rustics were credited with deriving their chief amusement from this simple pleasure.

But it's a different story now. When two of the major eastern railroads inaugurated streamline trains—(they've had streamliners out west for years now)—the new schedules were widely ballyhooed, with the result that hundreds of people gathered at metropolitan stations and crossings—to see the train go by.

Somehow that "plus-ultra sophistication" is a little hard to swallow. Nearer the truth is the fact that actually the "Big City" is only an overgrown country town, crowded with a lot of people who still like to watch the trains go by.

Aboard the President's Train—This trip is starting out to be the greatest rose-pinning expedition ever undertaken by a President of the United States.

It will also be combined with that ancient game, played at children's parties throughout the country, called "Pin the Tail on the Donkey."

In Kentucky today (Friday), the President is playing both games. He is pinning the rose firmly and conspicuously on the lapel of Senator "Dear Alben" Barkley; simultaneously he is giving the donkey's tail to Governor "Happy" Chandler.

In some states, the game is going to be so hazardous that Roosevelt might as well play it blindfolded, but in Kentucky his eyes are wide open and there never has been a moment's doubt about his choice. For aside from being genuinely grateful to "Dear Alben" for his support as Democratic leader of the Senate, Roosevelt has nursed a peeve against Chandler ever since Happy's ebullient claim that he had balanced Kentucky's budget while the Federal treasury was losing money.

Roosevelt once took Happy to task for this. "If it is true that you have balanced your budget," he shot back at Chandler, "it is only because of the millions of dollars the Federal government has poured into Kentucky."

FATHERLY TALK

The Roosevelt peeve against Chandler deepened last winter when he asked the young Governor to the White House for a fatherly talk.

"You are still a young man," he said, "and have your whole political future before you. Barkley, on the other hand, has served in Congress for many years. He is a liberal and able Senator and has done much for his state. He is entitled to reelection, just as you would be if you had his record."

"You, on the other hand, still have several years of your governorship to fill out. Why not do the sporting thing and stay out of this race?"

But Happy was not impressed. "If I remember correctly, Mr. President," he retorted, "you were quite a young fellow yourself when you upset the apple-cart in the New York Legislature and prevented 'Blue-eyed' Billy Sheehan from going to the Senate. Frankly I don't see what my age has to do with running against Barkley."

The President laughed, but underneath he didn't like it.

JUDGE LOGAN

Only two or three people know it, but the entire Kentucky primary fight could have been avoided if Dear Alben had been willing. The solution was to give Senator Marvel Logan a Federal judgeship, thereby letting "Happy" Chandler fill Logan's place.

Logan wanted to be a judge. Roosevelt was ready to make him one, but Barkley was the stumbling-block. He did not want to be a party to any move whereby Chandler would come to the Senate.

Note—Barkley's greatest ambition is to control the Kentucky delegation at the 1940 convention, gets its vote to help nominate him President of the United States.

EGG-DANCING

After leaving Kentucky, the President faces some primary fights where he will have to tread as skillfully as the blindfolded egg-dancer. Here is the itinerary:

Memphis, Tenn.—If he stops, Roosevelt will pin the donkey's tail on Senator George "Marble" Berry on whom he is very sour and who hasn't a chance to win. The President has no preference among the other candidates.

Little Rock, Ark.—Here, however, Roosevelt has a definite preference for Mrs. Hattie Caraway, and will give her the rose, if he stops. Representative John McClellan, her anti-New Deal opponent, has kept the wires hot pleading his cause, but got nowhere.

Oklahoma City—Here is where the real egg-dancing begins.

Personally the President is fond of Senator Elmer Thomas, now waging a difficult fight for reelection. Also he does not relish the idea of having blatant, grand-standing Congressman Gomer Smith, ex-Townsendite, blowing off steam in the Senate.

So if it were a choice between these two, the question would be simple. But Governor Ernest W. Marland, a New Dealer, also is in the race and has been yelling his head off demanding that Roosevelt stay out of Oklahoma, fearing of course, that he would pin the rose on Elmer Thomas.

This, indirectly, is what the President plans to do, but because Marland has supported him, and because there is also a complicated gubernatorial race in Oklahoma, the rose which Thomas gets will be a bud, and it will be tossed to him rather surreptitiously.

FAR WEST

Colorado—Here the President also runs into a delicate situation. He has no great love for Senator Alva Adams, who has knifed some of his most important measures. On the other hand, he does have great affection for Oscar Chapman, able Assistant Secretary of the Interior and frequent guest at Mrs. Roosevelt's Sunday night suppers. Oscar, however, does not have the support of Senator Edwin Johnson and various Denver leaders, so that his candidacy may be difficult.

Nevada—To date it looks as if Roosevelt would pin either the rose nor the donkey's tail on Senator McCarran, who voted against his Supreme Court bill.

California—William Gibbs McAdoo will be waiting at the Nevada border for the man he helped make President at Chicago in 1932, and the two will travel almost the length of the state together, part of the way by motor. McAdoo will get a large and luscious rose, and the President will make sure that everyone in the Golden State realizes it.

RETURN JOURNEY

Last but by no means least, are Georgia and South Carolina, through which Roosevelt will pass after his cruiser docks in Florida. Here he will also pin roses on U. S. Attorney Lawrence Camp, running against Senator George of Georgia, and on Governor Olin Johnston, running against Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina.

Thus will end the greatest rose-pinning expedition ever undertaken by a President of the United States.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

One Texas notable who will not board the President's train is Vice President Jack Garner. He will send a telegram of welcome when the President enters the state but otherwise will not interrupt his fishing. . . . The present of Basil O'Connor, the President's one-time law partner, in the presidential entourage does not mean that Roosevelt is not going hammer and tongs after the scalp of Basil's hotly anti-administration brother, Representative John O'Connor. The full weight of the White House will be thrown against the Tammanyite to prevent his return to the House. . . . The President's intimates are hoping that during his visit at Fort Worth with second son Elliott, he will do some plain talking to the young man about his recent Old Guardish radio talks.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. According to a survey of the youth of Maryland and their problems, by Howard M. Bell, more than twice as many young people from large families wanted to leave home as from small families. This contradicts the time-honored tradition that young people, growing up in "big, happy families," are more attached to home and mother and father than the poor, lonesome "only child."

Answer to Question No. 2

2. It is doubtful. A few financiers make fortunes in the nation's colonies—usually by using cheap native labor which injures instead of helps the home labor market.

When you add up the cost of the Boer and other South African wars—paid for by the English people—certainly the diamond fortunes never repaid the English public the cost. The average Italian will be paying for the Ethiopian war for the next hundred years. Yet most nations shout "We must have colonies for raw materials," and spills its blood for this mythical asset. It could buy the raw materials from the colonies vastly cheaper in the open market particularly if we have intelligent world trade agreements. The real motive is to preserve the national prestige and to put on a big front.

Answer to Question No. 3

"Thomas F. Collison, who has investigated the 'tipping evil' in the United States, says that we pay $200,000,000 annually in tips and are the champion tipsters of all time. He adds that the women of the United States give approximately $10,000,000 in tips to some 73,000 persons employed in the 61,000 beauty shops and 4,000 combination beauty and barber shops while the men pay $20,000,000 in tips to the 80,000 barbers who keep the nation's masculine hair cut and faces shaved."

SOME LEAGUE PILOTS SEEM DUE FOR GATE

Grimes, Traynor And Grimm Headed For the Ash Can

BY SID FEDER

Associated Press Sports Writer.

This is the time of year when tomatoes get ripe enough for good throwing from the stands, and major league managers start wondering whether they'll be reading the "help wanted" columns by autumn.

As the two big leagues picked up their pennant races today, after their three day all-star layoff there were the usual few pilots about whom speculation already has arisen.

For the first time in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, however, there isn't the hue and cry that usually results in the roof falling in on the incumbent at Cleveland.

Oscar Vitt has injected such huge globs of fight into the once easy-going Indians that the folks along that particular section of Lake Erie actually are rooting for him this late in the season.

On the other hand, you have fellows like Boiling Billy Grimes, Jolly Cholly Grimm and Peaceful Pie Traynor, who annually, from about this time on, are reported on the skids.

Grimes, it is known, hasn't met with the absolute approval of the powers that be in Brooklyn—notably Boss Man Larry (the Houdini) MacPhail. Up to a month or so ago, about everyone from Judge Landis down to the Phillies' bat-boy was reported in line for the dodger leadership.

Ruth Came Back. Then, along came Ruth. And now, it's generally accepted that the Babe will be handling the reins by no later than the start of next season. Remember that Ruth previously had insisted he'd never come back to baseball except as a major league manager. And remember, too, that the Dodgers are paying him $15,000 as a coach, and that much "tin" for a coach is like having your shoes shined by your $20,000-a-year bank president.

Whenever you think of managerial shifts, you somehow think of Grimm. For two seasons now, they've been saying that Jolly Cholly and his banjo are on the way out of the Chicago Cubs' dug-out.

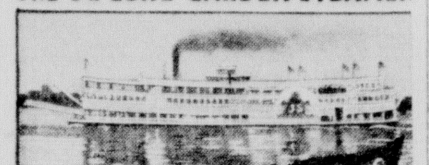

Last winter the Cubs acquired the astute Tom Lazzeri as utility infielder and assistant in brains to Grimm and Gabby Hartnett. Immediately the word went out that another year and old "Poosh 'Em Pop" Tony would be the boss. And unless the Cubs show a lot more down this season's stretch than they have to date, the idea isn't as far-fetched as it sounds.

Traynor on Trial? Another involved in talk of the old "heav-o" is Traynor. With a club containing more individual class than any other outfit in the league, the Pirates have advanced exactly nowhere for years. This may be the season, for they're red hot right now, but if they do their regular falling asleep in the late weeks, there's the possibility that Pittsburgh may put on a "new faces" act, come next April.

You hear regular rumors, too, about Jimmy Wilson in Philadelphia, but Jimmy is one of your smarter baseball pilots, gets as much out of his woe-filled Phillies as anyone could, and is "in good" with the front office.

They say, also, that Frankie Frisch won't be with the Cardin-

Princeton Golfers Beat Dixon's Team; Lazier Shoots 74

Princeton golfers took the local Country club team through the traces by a 27 to 16 count on the Princeton course Thursday but the locals solaced themselves with the thought that H. Lazier of the local club shot a nice low count of 74. Joe Vance of Princeton got a 71 for low count of the afternoon.

Lazier, a graduate of Northwestern University, played for several years on the Purple golf team in Big Ten varsity competition and has a hole-in-one to his credit, having attained this ace on a Rockford course last summer.

als much longer, but Frankie will never have to go around looking for a job. Several clubs would put him right to work. Gabby Street, too, hasn't been any howling success with the St. Louis Browns—but who would be with that material.

Dixon Merchants Agree To Meet Fruit Co. Team Astride Balky Donkeys

Fast Preliminary Is Planned Also For Sunday Evening

A team of Dixon merchants will play the Dixon Fruit Co. in a donkey ball game to be played at the airport lighted diamond Sunday night, it was announced this morning. The donkey game will begin about 8:15 P. M. to be preceded by a fast preliminary tilt between the California Market and the Reynolds Wires team.

Merchants who will play in the feature against the Dixon Fruit Co. astride their unwilling and unathletically minded mounts will be F. Aschenbrenner, Ryan, Porky Wareham, Lee Perkins, Merle Otto, Art Burnmeister, Paul James, Carl Galos, Dick Thompson, Bob Vest and Joe Miller.

Closely-Matched Teams

In the preliminary game, fans should witness the best softball duel seen here this summer. The Black Farms team and Reynolds Wires clashed at Walnut yesterday and the former won by a close 11 to 8 count. The Black Farms will meet the California Market team here July 22, and will play the Reynolds again tonight in the city softball league at 7:30 P. M. The Black Farms, California Markets and Dixon Fruit Co. teams are the city league's only unbeaten tens to date.

Donkey ball games have been held here in the past and have caused no end to comedy. The crowd is guaranteed a side-splitting performance Sunday night when the Merchants and the Fruit Co. teams square off against each other in cavalry array. The players are all hoping the donkeys will be in the mood for softball but rather suspect the beasts will be making a play for the grandstand instead.

Western Affair

Haverford, Pa., July 8.—(AP)—The semi-finals of the national intercollegiate tennis tournament became today a fight between the far west and middle west and the far west and southwest.

Robert Harman of the University of California, who upset the top-seeded Joseph Hunt of Southern California in the quarter-finals, was pitted against Frank Guernsey, Jr., of Rice Institute, Texas.

Lewis Wetherell, of Southern California, fought it out with Morley Lewis of Kenyon college, who eliminated the fourth-seeded Julius Heldman, of U. S. C. two days ago.

Harman outdistanced Hunt to win in three sets, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2. Lewis likewise conquered William Murphy, of Chicago, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2, refusing to get excited when the going was tough.

Wetherell had a more difficult time eliminating Murphy's twin brother, Chester, but rallied to win, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Guernsey also came from behind to beat Robert Kamrath, of the University of Texas, 5-7, 6-2, 6-1.

Evansville Bees Defeat Clinton

Chicago, July 8.—(AP)—Manager Bob Coleman of the Evansville Bees apparently had cause to disagree when Otto Huber, Bee second baseman, was not chosen for the Three-Eye league all-star game.

The Bees fattened their batting averages last night at the expense of three Clinton pitchers, cracking out 20 safeties as they won, 17 to 5, and the heaviest blow of all was Huber's fourth-inning home run. It came with three mates on base.

Raymond Campbell of the Molines snapped what threatened to be another prolonged Decatur winning streak by blanking the Combies with four hits as the Plows cut loose in the late innings to win, 7 to 0.

The Cedar Rapids-Springfield and Waterloo-Bloomington games were postponed because of rain and wet grounds.

HORNSBY FLAYS WAYS MANAGERS ARE SELECTED

Claims Many Lack Actual Experience in Baseball

New York, July 8.—Rogers Hornsby, star of many a big league battle who has just been named manager of the Chattanooga Lookouts following a series of recent difficulties in the majors, comes out in Colliers today with a blast against the practice of appointing inadequate playing experience as business managers of ball clubs.

In his usual outspoken manner, and not hesitating to name names, Hornsby says:

"One of the greatest drawbacks in operating a successful baseball club is a business manager who has not had adequate training in the playing end of the game. It is a trend in the sport which is likely to grow and if it does, baseball will be changed, and it loses its high rank due to this, it will be very hard to regain it."

"I refer to such men as Bill DeWitt of the St. Louis Browns, Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Warren Giles of the Cincinnati Reds. It is all very well to paint the ball park and put the players in gaudy suits but what really counts in baseball is a good ball club and you only get that from men who know baseball."

"A man may be a great pencil-pusher and yet not be a good baseball boss. Bill DeWitt was secretary to Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals and I'm sure he's good at business details, but when it gets to a point where baseball is being run by public accountants and theatrical managers, it will be a bad time for baseball."

Lot of Bunk. "You hear a great deal about showmanship, which is also a lot of bunk. It's all right to bring color into baseball so long as baseball itself is the main attraction; but when it's a matter of baritone solos between innings, and brass bands and marching elephants on opening days, it is not only bunk but it may be the end of a great sport."

"In the big leagues, the ideal arrangement is the one the Giants have. Bill Terry is not only team manager but also business manager and head of the chain system. He knows baseball upside down and he runs the Giants as a team should be run. Horace Stoneham owns the club and keeps hands off. He'll end by having the best property in baseball. Maybe that system won't work for all clubs but it beats the pencil-pushers' idea by a mile."

"A good manager knows who is valuable to his team. There may be a man who is hitting only .275 and yet is the 'winning type' and a team man. If the manager handles the contracts that man gets a break. But when a business manager who knows very little about baseball handles the contracts, what happens? Ask the ballplayers. When they come in to discuss terms, the business manager is likely to haul out a chart. What did you hit last year? Only .275! Well, you can't really expect a raise with an average like that. This team pays off on results."

In his article Hornsby also tells the story of the gambling controversy which he admits has done him a great deal of harm, and says that when the St. Louis Browns released him last year it was because he admitted betting on horses, and had nothing to do with his ability as a manager.

Schmeling Plans To Meet Braddock Or Farr In Fall

Cherbourg, July 8.—(AP)—Max Schmeling, arriving today aboard the Bremen en route to Germany, said he still was suffering severe pains from back injuries in his ill-fated championship fight with Joe Louis.

He said he would go to a hospital upon his arrival at Bremen, and that he would meet either James Braddock or Tommy Farr in September if he made a quick recovery.

There were 15 deaths due to diabetes to every million persons in Prussia during the years 1881 to 1885; in the period from 1911 to 1915, the death rate had increased to 87 persons.

ALLEN PITCHES PHENOMENALLY FOR CLEVELAND

Carried His Own Bat To All-Star Game; Has Won 27 Now

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, July 8.—(AP)—After looking over all of the all-stars out at Cincinnati, our favorite ball player still is cantankerous Johnny Allen, of the Cleveland Indians.

Not only is John pitching phenomenal baseball, having won 27 of his last 29 games, but he was the only pitcher to carry his own private bat to the all-star game. The reason being, of course, that the firebrand also considers himself an exceptionally dangerous hitter.

"What I saw of those guys today," he said after the glorified game, "I think I'll pitch a few more years in the American League and then round out my career as a hitter in the National."

That's Allen. He really says things like that, and he never yet has cared who was in earshot when he spoke his piece. He is a grand feudist, a man who would have made good with either the Hatfields or the McCoys.

One of Johnny's pet peeves (outside of all umpires) is round Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees, for whom Johnny used to toil. They get along so poorly that Joe finally shipped him to Cleveland, and for all of Allen's miraculous pitching since, McCarthy never has regretted the deal.

So, when Joe asked Johnny if he would like to pitch the second three-inning hitch against the Nationals on Wednesday, Johnny came right back: "Now don't strain yourself, Joe." An Allen never relents.

LONG KEY RATED HAMBLETONIAN RACE FAVORITE

Steed's Mother Was Winner in 1927 Gig Classic

Cleveland, July 8.—(AP)—Followers of the trotters and pacers today hailed Long Key, a frisky bay colt owned by the Columbus, (O.) sportsman, E. J. Merkle, as the favorite for the 1938 Hambletonian at Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 10.

More than two years ago Merkle decided he wanted Long Key because his mother, Isola's daughter, had whirled his Ohioan's colors to conquest in the 1927 Hambletonian. His daddy was Peter Volo, himself a champion in the futurities.

Merkle's bid of $3,600 finally acquired the horse, consigned by the Walnut Hall farm of Doneraile, Ky., and he went into the stable of silver-haired Benjamin Franklin White for training.

Failed in 7 Starts. Last year as a juvenile he failed to win in seven starts, but in the $8,185 championship stake for three-year-old trotters at North Randall yesterday he ground eight rival Hambletonian candidates into the dust so impressively that he became an odds-on favorite to repeat his mother's triumph.

Long Key, driven by White, was second by a length to the Cleveland colt, Champlain, owned by Will Hughes, in the first heat which was won in 2:01 4-5, then came back to take the second and third miles.

His time in the second, 2:01 1/2, equalled the stake record set in 1935 by Greyhound. He won the third mile in 2:02.

Eight fast trotters were named to battle it out in the $1,000 Devereux-Harvey 17 trot, a feature of today's Grand Circuit card, with Bravo, a winner at Toledo last week, highly regarded.

Maxie says: "TRY STAG BEER AT THE 19TH HOLE!"

"Look at how happy Mr. Dubber is! No wonder! He played golf today with Otto and here's what happened . . . On the last hole, Mr. Dubber managed to hit the ball a good one and it went out of sight. I ran after it and just for fun I put it in the hole where the flag is. Otto and Mr. D. didn't know I had done this and they were very excited. To celebrate, Otto invited Mr. D. home for some Stag Beer. Mr. D. had never tasted Stag. So he says this is his double lucky day! I agree."

Here's the fairway to real beer-drinking pleasure!

Stag Beer to cool you off and really refresh you! This old-time lager sparkles like a new club in the sun. It's got zest to match . . . and it gets along with you like that pal with whom you always play. For Stag is dry, never "sweet."

Let this mellow, friendly old lager help you hang up a new record for genuine beer-drinking satisfaction! Call for Stag the next time you come in from a round of golf. And keep a case at home.

Three Big League Clubs Trimmed By Semi-Pro Outfits

New York, July 8.—(AP)—At least three big league ball clubs were glad to be back in the comparatively safe surroundings of regular league competition.

All three, the Brooklyn Dodgers, Philadelphia Athletics and Phillies, stopped off yesterday after the all-star game to entertain the small-town customers and pick up a few exhibition game dollars. The results were sad and as follows:

The A's were shut out, 4-0, on five hits by Jimmy Skelton of a Pitman, N. J., semipro team, who fanned ten; the Phils were turned back, 2-1, by Lester Hinkle of a Tremont, Pa., semipro club, who gave them two hits and drove in the winning run; the Dodgers lost, 3-2, to their Elmira Eastern league "farm hands," being held to four hits, one a triple by Coach Babe Ruth.

Our earth is not a sphere. Because of the slightly flattened condition at the poles, the technical term for its shape is "oblate spheroid."

PROFIT SHARING INSURANCE PLAN WINNING FAVOR

Rural Bankers' Life Co. of Dixon Promulgates New Kind of Policy

Announcement was made today by officers of the Rural Bankers' Life Insurance Company of the approval by the Illinois Insurance Department of the new Legal Reserve Preferred Risk Special Expansion Program Profit Sharing Policy. The directors and company's actuary have had this special policy under consideration for more than a year and its immediate acceptance by the public is evidence of its unusual merits.

The outstanding features and benefits of the policy are readily understood by insurance buyers. The policy is full profit-sharing and that the accumulated profits or dividends are at all times available to the policyholder without giving a note and paying interest; also if the policyholder desires he may leave the cash accumulation with the company at 3% interest and in case of death of the insured the cash value is paid along with the face amount of the policy, making it most outstanding policy in the field of insurance.

The plan campaign is planning a state-wide campaign on this new policy, having in mind that several thousand policyholders with profit-sharing policies will, in a few years, give the company the finest advertising possible.

The agency force has already demonstrated enthusiasm for the new policy and from all indications the volume of business will be most gratifying.

This new policy by Rural Bankers' Life is another step forward in the field of "Pure Protection" in which the company has made a most outstanding record.

Theodore Roosevelt, one-time Colonel of The Rough Riders and later the twenty-sixth president of the United States of America, wrote:

"Extravagance robs character; train your youth away from it. On the other hand, the habit of saving money, while it stiffens the will, also brightens the energies. If you would be sure that you are beginning right, begin to save."

$1,226,237 Spent in Illinois to Execute Farm Plans

Washington, July 8.—(AP)—The agricultural adjustment administration reported today local farmers' committees and associations spent $1,226,237 in Illinois to execute the 1936 agricultural conservation program between July 1, 1936, and Feb. 28, 1937.

The total for the country was $19,409,514. The AAA explained that figure did not include: $3,172,718 spent for organization work prior to July 1, 1936; $438,122 for "clean-up work" after Feb. 28, 1937; $175,470 paid western range inspectors, and $24,771 in miscellaneous items.

The AAA said the bulk of funds paid for local expenses went to local farmer committees and field men paid on a day-to-day basis. It said the local expenses amounted to five per cent of the $376,097,828 paid farmers for participation.

AAA officials said compliance payments under the 1936 program went to 3,961,596 individuals. Expenses by Illinois counties included:

Henry, $22,028.65; Jo Daviess 12,706.42; Kane 13,691.92; Knox, 15,191.34; LaSalle 20,461.30; Lee 13,548.14; Peoria 12,779.55; Rock Island 8,349.00; Sangamon 19,641.85; Whiteside 13,428.47; Will 6,748.15; Win

LOVE ON THE RANGE

BY NELSON C. NYE

The Story So Far.

Trying to escape trouble, "Blur" Ankrom gets in it up to his neck when he rescues Lee Trone from a band of thugs. Under the name of Abe Streeter, he accepts a job at the Trones' Rafter T, which is in difficulties, and has a run-in with Mose Hackett, the range boss. Lee tells her father Ankrom knows their friends, the Struthers; then learns they are coming for a visit.

Chapter Six.

"You Imitation Bad Man!" There was conviction in Lee's low voice when she spoke. "Mose Hackett is no fourflusher. It's bad, when I don't believe for a minute, then he's a curly wolf. He's not the 'yes-man' type."

"Neither is a coyote," Ankrom countered. "He's a believer in the motto: 'Then that fights an' runs away, will live to fight another day.' Now let's talk about somethin' else. As a conversational topic, Brother Hackett grows extremely odious."

He was aware that in the darkness her eyes still remained upon his face; he realized his slip almost as soon as he made it and so was not surprised to hear her say:

"Where did you learn to sling words around like that?" He answered carelessly, "I wasted a number of years at a university once, and was relieved that she let it go like that and did not press him. Several moments passed, then he put a question to her that caused her breath to be in-drawn sharply:

"What makes you connect what happened in Paso Pinto last night with these troubles of you father? What makes you think someone might be trying to strike at him through you?"

"Who said that's what I think?" "But you do, don't you?" After dragging seconds she said "Yes," slowly. Then, "You don't miss much, do you?"

"Can't afford to," he answered. "In my business a man has to stay awake." His voice went grim and a little bitter, "It's the price a gun-man pays for continued existence."

"But you're not a gun-man—" "Some people have called me one. I can recall a number of occasions—"

"Those people were fools," she snapped. The beating of Blur Ankrom's heart stepped up terrifically.

"Lee—" he dropped the arm that had lain across the back of the seat upon his shoulders in the earnestness of what he was about to say: "Lee—"

But he felt the sudden stiffening of her supple form beneath that arm and the words he had been about to launch were scattered. The moment was lost and in the darkness a cynical curve twisted the line of his lips. He removed the offending arm as though it had been burnt.

"I think I'd better go," said Lee coldly.

He watched her leave. When she had gone, the bitter mood clamped more firmly down upon him than ever. Her passing left the gulf between them plain. He'd been a fool to ever think—

He stepped from the car, strode toward the lighter space that marked the door. A figure lounging there grew straight and blocked his path; he read a definite menace in its rigidity.

"Hold on, you."

Ankrom's muscles tensed; that voice belonged to Hackett!

Primed for Trouble.

Ankrom's face reflected no surprise nor showed the faintest sign of fear. That Hackett was primed for trouble he knew well, for he recognized certain signs to which he was accustomed in men who picked quarrels. He stiffened, but that was all.

A red flame was flickering in Mose Hackett's eyes, his body was bent forward from the waist and his right hand hovered above the pistol at his hip. An ugly snarl twisted his lips:

"Yeah—Hackett!"

"Got something on your mind?"

"You're damn well right I have. There ain't no man in Texas can run on me the way you done this afternoon an' git away with it. Go on—snuck your iron, you imitation bad man!"

"The place an' time to stage this melodrama was before the bunkhouse this afternoon. I'm not heeled now, an' you know it."

Ankrom eyed the burly range boss coldly. "Thought you told Trone you were leavin' for the southeast line camp."

"What I told Trone is none of your business. An' if you ain't heeled that's your tough luck." A wicked jubilation added fuel to the flame in Hackett's eyes. "I'm gonna work you over till your own mother won't even know you!"

With the words he started forward, jerking the pistol from his holster.

Ankrom's soft laugh mocked the range boss's threat. It caused Mose Hackett to draw up swiftly and peer at him through narrowed lids suspiciously.

"What the hell you laughin' at?"

"You," Ankrom laughed again and watched a dull red stain the range boss's cheeks.

"Why you lousy saddle bum—Hackett choked, 'I'll make you eat that laugh!"

Spread Eagle.

Ankrom did not move as Hackett thrust his gun in leather and balled his horny fists, but his eyes became steely. The range boss looking into them, should have taken warning. Instead, he came forward in a rush as Ankrom backed away.

Then suddenly Ankrom stopped—stopped short in his tracks and struck. That lashing fist took Hackett flush upon the jaw and checked all movement. His body sagged and he took an uncertain backward step or two. Then Ankrom's fist lashed again. Hackett reeled against the stable. A moment he paused spread-eagled there, then slumped inertly to the ground.

Ankrom stood where he was and waited. He wanted this settled now. A minute dragged in silence. Ankrom knew the men inside the bunkhouse had got wind of the affair and guessed that they were watching. But he did not turn.

all his faculties were concentrated on that huddled mass that was Mose Hackett. The man might be out, or he might be playing 'possum. Long experience had taught Blur Ankrom to take no chances.

Another minute passed. Hackett stirred and groaned. His eyes opened and looked dull, uncomprehending. Finally he got to his feet, staggering a little. He was a strong man, injured to danger. Obviously he had never known a pulse of fear till now. But as his eyes encountered Ankrom where he stood as cold and motionless as some man of bronze, Mose Hackett's knees shook visibly, his eyes went wide and he drew air into his lungs in noisy gasps.

There fell a silence, strained, portentous. Ankrom broke it. "Well?"

Coolness grows between Lee and Ankrom, tomorrow.

Brain Twizzlers

By PROF. J. D. FLINT

The role we assume today is really fun. We are deep south planters and we own a large plantation. The wide veranda is shaded from the hot sun, fans are cooling us and the mint juleps feel frosty in our hands. Oh! Boy!

Unfortunately we have a problem on hand to settle with regard to selling a small piece of land. We have a section nine hundred feet on a side. It is square and we are planning on selling four corner lots, three hundred feet on a side. The nine hundred foot square is fenced and we want to keep our remaining property fenced after the transaction. How much more fence will we need?

Camp Ralston

July 7.

Howdy Folks!

I'm so sorry I haven't written you for quite a while but it seems that "Ye Camper" lost her pencil or her ideas or sumpin; anyway here we are again.

Rain again! Thursday seems to be the jinx for rain in the camp. It's stormed every Thursday since we've been here, but that's now you learn to be a real camper, having some rainy days along with the sunshine.

This week's camp period was divided into two three-day sessions. The first three days we had the Brownies in camp, and did they ever have a good time. They were particularly fond of the treasure hunts which wore out some of the leaders making the trails for them to follow; and then to the chagrin of the leaders, the Brownies asked if they could have another trail the next day.

Fourth of July was a big day in camp. Although the girls were not allowed to shoot any fireworks, they had a grand time anyway. At the supper table, each person had a place card which was an imitation of a real one, rolled up and tied inside; and thanks to Campy, they were very clever (even if I did get razzed). Also suspended above each table was an imitation skyrocket. That evening at campfire all of the girls had some sparklers. After the fire died down, they roasted popcorn over the coals. After this, we had a display of fireworks and then off to bed.

For the last period there are twenty girls in camp. Although we started right out with a rain, every-
